

Consumer Electronics

Return to Applications

Microprocessors based on MIPS or ARM architectures with memory measured by a few Megabytes or even Kilobytes is the norm for Consumer Electronics applications. However, standards compliance, dynamic discovery, and highly configurable communications is still highly desired while performance and scalability is a must.

CoreDX DDS brings the full power of DDS with all these features to even the smallest MIPS and ARM devices.

Source: Twin Oaks Computing: Consumer Electronics

From:

<https://omgwiki.org/ddsf/> - DDS Foundation Wiki

Permanent link:

https://omgwiki.org/ddsf/doku.php?id=ddsf:public:applications:consumer_electronics&rev=1557982014

Last update: 2019/05/16 00:46

